RoHS

RoHS stands for "Restriction of Hazardous Substances" and is a European Union directive that states that certain hazardous substances may not be used in electronic devices and components. These substances can be harmful to the environment and health. The RoHS Directive is intended to ensure that electronic products are manufactured in a safe and environmentally friendly manner.

This also includes labels used in or on electronic products. Therefore, labels used on electronic devices must comply with the RoHS requirements.

To ensure this, we proactively request information every six months from all our suppliers of materials to ensure that RoHS compliance is always up to date.

Our goal at Avery Zweckform is to manufacture and distribute all products RoHS compliant.

Do you need a current product-related RoHS Declaration of Conformity? Contact us at:
